Research Fellow of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation

"Heinz Heckhausen Young Scientist" dissertation award by the German Psychological Society, 1996

Faculty Fellowship for doctoral studies at Columbia University, 1990-1995

Research Interests

Formation of preferences that underlie judgments and decisions. In particular:

- Differences between impulsive motivation (wanting, desire) and hedonic feelings (predicted pleasure, liking) and their respective influences on behavior
- Reversing negative emotional brand associations
- Psychological differences between gains and losses

Mentoring of Graduate Students

-for academic careers, first professor positions are listed in parentheses-

Primary PhD-Student Advisor or Co-Advisor:

Anne-Laure Sellier (London Business School, 2003), Maria Galli (Hong Kong University of Science & Technology, 2004), Mauricio Mittelman (Universidad Torcuato Di Tella, 2007), Xianchi Dai (The Chinese University of Hong Kong, 2008), Andrea Bonezzi (New York University, 2012), Soo Kim (Cornell University, 2014), Mijung Park (2017), Ben Neuwirth (2018)

Other Research Student Mentoring at Graduate or Post-Doc Level:

Joachim Vosgerau (Carnegie Mellon University, 2005), Claude Messner (University of Basel, 2005), Mathew Isaac (Seattle University, 2011), Monika Lisjak (Erasmus University, 2012), Jana Moeller (Free University Berlin, 2013), Xiaomeng Fan (Shanghai Tech University, 2019), Monica Gamez-Djokic (Purdue University, 2022), Ozgun Atasoy (Warwick Business School, 2023)

Teaching Experience

At the University of Basel

Undergraduate: Introduction to Marketing

Graduate: Behavioral Science, Psychology of Decision Making, Consumer Behavior,
Psychological Theory in Consumer Behavior

At the Kellogg School of Management

Executive education: executive MBA elective “Consumer Insight and Marketing Strategy”
(with Gregory Carpenter), also taught in non-degree programs.

MBA courses: MBA elective Consumer Behavior

PhD courses: Psychological Theory in Consumer Behavior

At INSEAD
